In the first assertion of claim that Dr Whit-In the first assertion of claim that Dr Whitman "saved Gregon to the United States" its inventors referred to Daniel Webster as President Filmore's secretary of state. They represent Whitman appealing to Filmore and protesting against Webster traiting off Oregon for certain cod fisheries on the New England coast. As Filmore was not president in 1847, at d Whitman had been murdered in 1847, before Filmore had become president, it became necessary to substitute Trier for Filmore, and the story afterwards, shaped itself thus "Early in the autumn of 1842, in October probably, the daster was dining at the fort, attending hereupon some professional cal, when there came a herald, saying, "The brigads is

I will cross the continuation this wirter, and bring an immigration large enough to settle it." In two hours he was at his station, Walfaipu, twenty-four miles distant Leaping from his feating horse, he sa d, "I must go to the states this winjer." In two days, leaving wife and home, he was on his way for a morning late in February, 1813, he reached St. Louis. Resisting all entreaties to remain, he hastened on to Washington. You can imagine him chaid in the same rough buffalo garb, a f w days later, sitting in the office of Daniel Webster, then secretary of state, pleading with him note trade Oregon for the fisheries of New Foundland, and urging the same its of New Foundand, and urging the same plea before President Tyler, pledging himself to take an immigration with their wagons to the

The author of the above version also tells it a danger, he reached Missouri in the last days of February or first of March, 1843. He found gentlemen there who had been enquiring about the Pacific coast. He said, 'Do you wish to go there?' Yes, but we are told we cannot reach there? Yes, but we are told we cannot reach that coast with our wagons? W. H. Gray in the fall of 1844 had become thesatisfied a and with the mission, and early in 1842 had removed with his family to Wallamet valley and had accepted employment in the Oregon M. H. mission in connection with the establishment of the Oregon mention. He was a trustee of the first class (one year, May, 1842, to May, 1848,) and the cupe intendent and secular agent. It is certain that he was not at Waillangu after June, 1842, so if he was present at the meeting referred to as stated by Eels, then such meeting referred to as stated by Eels, then such meeting referred to as stated by Eels, then such meeting referred to as stated by Eels, then such meeting referred to as stated by Eels, then such meeting referred to as stated by Eels, then such meeting referred to as stated by Eels, then such meeting referred to as stated by Eels, then such meeting referred to the Wallamet. It is considered to wallamet ralley an early in 1842 as he could find conveyance to the Wallamet. It is also certain that at the annual meeting of the mission in June, 18-2, there were present only four male members of the mission, two of whom, Mesars Eels and Walker, opposed or Whitman's project, and Walker, opposed or Whitman's project, and Whitman and Spailing, the two others, favored it. The former yielded assent only after Dr. Whitman had expressed also determination to they the surface of the miss on if the board adhered to its purpose of abandoning Wallathu and Lapwah.

Rev. Henry H. Spaiding, under dute of Janury 9th, 1834, in a letter excludively devoted to the boped-for rescission by the America a board, of its order of 1841, recalling him and directing the abandonment of the so them statung, and the causes of such order, uses languages which leaves no doubt winstever that no mee him had been he disace June, toughing or concerning Dr. Whitman's Journey to the east. Says he "By a vote of our mission, which went home for the boa

The official organ of the Aimerican board of foreign miss om should be accepted as conclusive authority. The objects of Dr. Writman as claimed at ite time sy himself to have justified his absume from his pust of duty are there stated and approved. The Missionary Heroid, edited by Rev. David. Green 3, then excretary of the A.B.C.F. M., chronicles the presence of Dr. Whitman at Boston, in the spring of 1843, and announces the purposes of his mission. "It was thought not propects of these stations to the prudential commit see. After a long and diresome journey he reached Boston in the early spring, and upon hearing the representations which he made, it was resolved to say ain the operations of the mission within the made, it was resolved to say ain the operations of the mission without any material change. Were the prospect of benefit in those for whom it was more especially established even less than it is, there are other considerations which he would justify its confirmance. Aside from its inference on the Incians, the emigrants, who are now crossing the kooky mountains in companies containing commitmes hundreds of souls, will be in a most explorable condition if they find in their new homes nothing better than he alrenism and Romanism. Another object of Dr. Whitman in naking the atove mentioned visit was to procure additional abovers. He desired also Caristian families to emigrate and settle in the vidrily of the different stations that they might relieve the missionary of his secular respons billities, and also contribute directly in the various ways to the social and mind improvement of the Indiana."

Lee and Frost, in their "Ten Years in Oregon," note his departure, the purposes of his sourney, as stated in "Oregon" by Mrs. Narcissa Whitman, and all there present, most of whom were connected with the missionary Heroid Continued selence for ilmost a quarter of a century, in the absence of positive authorisative affirmation, is a circumstance upon which the histones were an appeal at the winter journey of Iry cate that they recon mended his journey to the board. fatal to the life and heing of the good Dr Whitman than are these false cta ms of merit to his reputation.

Ristory will protect his fair fame and good name from being held accountable fo these claims in his name, which he never asserted in his practical and useful his. History, also, will not tolerate that the laurels due to the immor tal chall be snatched from his prow.

It has recorded the great fact that Daniel Webster never uttered a ward on any occasion in the senade for at the office of secretary of slate, favoring the relinquishment to Great Britain of any portion of Oregon territory south of the 59th parallel. Much less with a private citizen did he have an interview, in March, 1843, or at any other time, such as a stributed to Webster and Whitman, wherean Webster slated he had determined to surrender any part of Oregon territory.

Serenth—No treety, propo ed treaty, nor negotiations between thest fittain and the funited States, as to the Oregon bour dary, were in progress either in 1842 or 1843 et Vashington, and by Whitman cid not nor could not have defeat ed a treaty nor infinenced negotiations.

Eighth—Oregon, or any part of it, was not saved to the United States in 1843, neither was tit in any more danger in 1842 or 1843, of heing los, than it had been since helfirst treaty of joint occupancy in 1818.

Finally The objective point of the winter journey of Dr Marcus Whitman was Boston, not Weshington City. The saving of Oregon to the United States was not dreamed of by him, and the letter of Edward C. Rese, Esq., which was dated on the hinty-seventh anniversary of the Whitman nesserce.

The different standards of criticism which are applied to men and women constitute one of the grave defects of our imperfect crillization. In the field of morals women are far more severely judged than men—a fart which the Italians have expressed in the popular saying, "A man's mortal sins are venial, while a woman's renial time are mortal." Vanity, selfishness, arrogance t vulgarity, as well as the graver sum of unchastir, and intemperance, are forgiven in men far it ore reachly than in women. It is mally in moral development results from this mequality in the social check on sin—that sex suffering most in moral character whose wrong acluge are most feniently judge i are most feelently judge!

In the field of intellect, on the contrary, it is to women that the lower standard of crincism is applied. They are admired for a degree of mental energy and attainments which, if exhibited by men, would barily engage observation. In consequence of this initiation mercy it is lack a needed standing to exertion, and their intellectual development is rotarded. If a

THE STAGE.

The Costno - "Boccaccio" still continues to attract large audiences. Next Mondry, however, "I a Perhabele" will be produced instead of "I a Perichole" will be produced instead of Fra Inax(lo," as heretofore announced. This thange was not intention all upon the part of the rangement, but was rendered necessary by the delay to the mail, which 'alled to bring the score of "Fra Diavolo". "I. I Peruhole" fortuitels is a very pretty and aftractive opera, and those who saw Hageman as the white-haired theoret of "twelve long, weary years," will go agair, if for nothing else than that but of exclicit tonedy. The cast has not yet been an nounced, but it is affer to say hat Hageman will have the part. The capabilities of the Casino sigge and of the Whiston tracipe will certainly give a better performance of the opera linar ever better in this city.

KEPT BY THE MISSES BROWN'

The Misses Brown were taking tea together in their own hitle room at 5 o'clock in the after-moon. The little room was the cabine; whither these halos retired from the cares of the establishment, and where they made out the weekly bulk of their bearders—those accounts in which extra items appeared in the spidery and angular bandwriting of the younger sister, Seling. far handwriting of the younger sister, Selina.

The world of modern Rome swept across the wide plazma and along the crowded thorough-fare—a mingling of sound which floated into the open widow with the bright winter sunsidine. The breeze mustled the plants of a standard, near at hand rose a church tower, one of the many shrines of the eternal city, and across intervening roofs the Pincian hill rose clearly defined against the blue sky.

The Misses Brown heeded neither tunnit of police nor the cray the of the city, for their sky.

When he contracted to bring his reased and cargo to Forland, the bellant thereby undertook to provide all the males necessary and appropriate to that end and also to bear the expense of so doing except as otherwise specially provided in the contract. Upon this point—that the defendant was only a pay for the necessary lighterings, and therefore the idealiant was not excused from furnish of it—the language of the churter party is plain the language of the churter party is plain. for the necessary lighterage, and therefore the libeliant was not excused from furnish or ithe libeliant was not excused from furnish or ithe language of the charter party is blain and the meaning an purpor apparent. But the instrument also furnishes very strong confirmatory evidence of the correctness of this conclusion, in the special provision therein, tha "no more emigo is to be lightered than necessary," to combit the evesse to proceed to Portland. Now, if the defendant was to furnish the resents, as well as "pay" for, the lightening of the vesse there was no concervible sec-ssity by this previous for it goes without saying tat it would not furnish any more lighterage than was necessary, and that it did, the libeliant could not be impured if ereby But if the fills than was necessary, and that it did, the libeliant could not be impured if ereby But if the fills than was necessary, and that if the fills than was necessary, and that if the fills that we if to furnish" for provide" the lighterage to the expense of the serious fills and the contract. If may be admitted that the law would ave construed the contract without this claus, as conjy binding the defendant to pay for ne-examply lighterage, but nevertheless, the insertion of it puts beyond question, what is olierwise not in nout, that the parties contemplated that the surface of the defendant, the lighterage ne essay to enablessim to perform his undertaking to the cargo.
